QubicaAMF Worldwide, LLC

Mr. Walker has been in the bowling industry for eight years. Starting as GM of Consumer Products at AMF Worldwide, Inc., he was promoted within months to Vice President of North America Sales, and then Senior Vice President of Global Sales. He was ultimately named President and Chief Operating Officer of AMF Bowling Products. Prior to joining AMF, he was Vice President of Bicycle Products for Murray Ohio Manufacturing Company, the second largest bicycle company in the United States.

He also served as Executive Vice President of Marketing at Crestar Investment Group and as a Brand Manager at Procter & Gamble. In addition to his new responsibilities at QubicaAMF, Inc., Mr. Walker has become involved in many industry organizations and currently serves on the board of trustees of the International Bowling Museum and Hall a Fame.

Mr. Walker holds a B.S. degree in commerce from the University of Virginia, and an MBA from the school's Darden School of Business.

Emanuele Govoni

Executive Vice President and Chief Marketing Officer

QubicaAMF Worldwide, LLC

Mr. Govoni, who holds a microelectronics & telecommunication degree from Istituto Belluzzi Bologna, is a pioneer in automated scoring systems. A programmer by trade, one of his first jobs was working on scoring systems with a small company in Bologna, Italy.

In 1993, when he co-founded the Qubica organization - which became Qubica Worldwide in 2001 and is now merging with AMF Bowling Products - his primary task was to create the world's first touch screen scoring FD/BO System.

As the company grew, Emanuele, the acting managing partner of Qubica, established the first sales & distribution network in Europe, then established partnerships with Ciniello/Albright/Mascadri of Qubica USA and Qubica Asia & Australia. In 1998, Emanuele was nominated CEO of Qubica Italy, and in 2001 after its consolidation, CEO of the Qubica worldwide group. Emanuele also directed the Qubica marketing strategy and department.
